Dear Father Bechard:

Thanks very much for the ~~POSTIT~~ of Venerable Kateri Tekawitha. It is rather complete and as you suggested I did not need any other research.
It helped a good deal in charting the articles for the series. As you asked me to slant them toward the central theme of Kateri and Modern Youth, I have tried to do this and hope that I have succeeded without being too obvious. I would rather send them all to you at one time so that you may make any changes or revisions in them before you start publishing them.

I assure you that I am open to criticism, suggestion and revision. I will be glad to make any revisions which you might suggest, or if you would like to make a few yourself you are entirely free to change them about or add to, detract from, or do anything you want to bring them to your ideas on the subject.

I hope they will be satisfactory, I worked hard on them, but it is hard to know whether something is good or not when ^{you} are so close to it. It takes another person's views to really evaluate the work.

Thanking you very much for the opportunity to get so well acquainted with Kateri and for the book, (Do you want it back?) I remain,

Very sincerely

Anne Tarsey
